Introduction

Afghanistan’s youth population is among the highest in the world with approximately 63 per-cent of the population (27.5 million Afghans) below 25 years of age and 46 percent (11.7 million children) under 15 years, they grapple with issues such as limited access to education, high un-employment, poverty, child marriage, early pregnancy, gender-based violence, and escalating mental health concerns due to prolonged conflicts and restricted access to essential services. To strengthen humanitarian responses, it is essential to recognize and cater to the specific needs of these young individuals, empowering them with skills and resources to reduce dependency on international aid, enhance effectiveness, and fortify community resilience in Afghanistan.

Thematic Working Group on Adolescents and Youth in Afghanistan, is an action-oriented forum, was formed in June 2022 under Protection Cluster that focuses on youth-specific advo-cacy, planning and coordination, while addressing the cross-cutting nature of the population group, and works toward advancing the youth agenda in humanitarian settings in line with the Global Compact for young people in Humanitarian Action.

Purpose and Rationale of the 4Ws service mapping

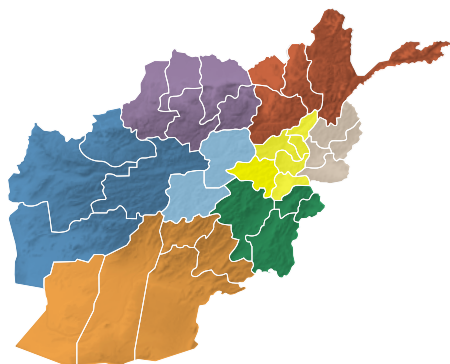

The 4Ws matrix for the adolescents and youth services is a crucial tool used by the Adoles-cents and Youth Working Group (AY WG) to provide an overview of essential services available for this group of populations in Afghanistan, as well as the actors implementing programs in specific locations across the country. These are categories of information that are included in the 4Ws matrix:

WHO [Actors]	WHAT [Activities]	WHERE [Locations]	WHOM [Beneficiaries]
List humanitarian organizations, government agencies, and community groups involved in the response.	Description of the specific activities or interventions being carried out.	Specific geographical areas (provinces / districts) where activities are taking place.	Indicating the target groups of interventions delivered by the actors - groups of adolescent and youth.

The data collection took place in September 2023 and the data management tool used for compiling and updating the 4Ws matrix is the KOBO specialized humanitarian information management software. Results were compiled in spreadsheets, data validation and verifica-tion were performed, employing cross-referencing with multiple sources, including reports, open-source documents, blogs, and, in some cases by conducting interviews with the organi-zational focal persons.
